This technology also informs the style of the game and the teams. The player animations and styles reflect the “human” athleticism of the real players with lower overall movement speeds but a more varied degree of movement between poses, to accurately reflect the movement and game style of the players and teams. It is this more refined human movement that allows players to perform their true and natural form of movement. This is crucial to creating an authentic experience when players use their skills, tricks and unique character. Match modes such as Domination, Be A Pro, Tournament and Story continue to make their way into FIFA 22. The player abilities, such as dribbling, shooting, passing and tackling, will also see a significant change. New camera positions give players more space to move around and increase visibility in the game. Cameras have been adjusted to create the most immersive viewing experience possible. As players move towards the camera the background detail is more detailed to let you experience the game in a way that is truly un-scripted, from close-up, to the distance and first-person modes. The player design is also changing with new players such as Gianluigi Buffon, Luka Modrić, Cesc Fabregas and Éver Banega, while the classic players like Patrick Kluivert and Del Piero are making a return. The A.I. of teammates has also been improved to make use of the strengths of your players. For example, one of the A.I. improvements allows the right-back to prepare an assist by linking up with his mate on the left wing. FIFA 22 is still playable on all platforms, with PS4 the only model to include a Dynamic Lighting System. The Dynamic Lighting System is a new ability, based on the light bouncing around the world map and onto the players to reflect where light is and where shadows lie. FIFA 2k17 was available for both PS4 and Xbox One. EA has yet to announce a release date for FIFA 2k18 for the PlayStation 4. For PC, the game will not be released due to an agreement with the Professional Hockey League that will not allow EA to host or comment on the FIFA 2k18 engine. For Xbox One, Microsoft has yet to confirm a release date for the game, but a leak showed it as being on the way.
