bionumbers.net/mnu/monography.asp .Northland Intermediate Bench The Northland Intermediate Bench is a cricket ground in the Northland Region of New Zealand. It is the home ground of the Waitomo District Cricket Club. The ground consists of a single turf wicket, on which the ball must be bowled. The rest of the ground consists of an outfield of gravel, and is a versatile venue for both first-class and Twenty20 matches. The stadium is the smallest in New Zealand, although Canterbury Basin Park is smaller with a smaller capacity, ground area, and limited facilities. History The venue was opened for the first time in 1999, when the Northland Warriors played the Northland Flyers, and won by 12 runs. This first match also attracted a crowd of 18,000. The venue has also hosted domestic one day games including a List A cricket match between Ot 6d1f23a050
