Also, the conventional analog-to-digital converter (ADC) used in the closed loop circuit generally performs a sigmoidal low-pass filtering that leads to a distortion of the desired signal if the oversampled number of bits is relatively high. Therefore, the analog-to-digital converter's bandwidth must be reduced. In co-pending U.S. patent application Ser. No. 11/633,946, entitled "CDMA Radio Receiver, Method And Computer Program Product Thereof", issued as U.S. Pat. No. 7,064,572, the contents of which are hereby incorporated by reference in its entirety, a CDMA receiver is provided that includes a Radio Frequency (RF) receive antenna circuit to receive RF signals from a wireless communication channel; a filtering circuit having a first circuit that is coupled to the RF receive antenna circuit and a second circuit coupled to the first circuit to filter the RF signals and a first mixer to mix the RF signals with a first local oscillator (LO1) signal to generate an RF Intermediate Frequency (IF) signal that is filtered by the first circuit; a first ADC coupled to the first circuit to digitize the RF IF signals and generate digital IF signals; a first low-pass filter to remove IF signal components at a specified IF bandwidth; and a second mixer coupled to the second circuit to mix the RF IF signals with a second LO signal having a frequency that is lower than the
